● GROWING E-COMMERCE SPACE IS A HUGE OPPORTUNITY

The Delhivery is on track

AYANTI BERA
February 11

DELHIVERY IS ON a roll. The integrated logistics player delivered its first profit in the September quarter, posting an adjusted operating profit of ₹92 crore and a net profit of ₹16 crore on annualised revenue growth of 20%. The company is a clear frontrunner in the third-party express parcel delivery service space commanding a share of 40%.

Express consignments delivered in Q3FY24 topped 200 million. As Shrinidhi Karlekar of HSBC observed, the growth in shipments against the backdrop of weak consumption was impressive. “It reinforces our confidence in the structural growth opportunities for e-commerce logistics and Delhivery’s ability to capture that profitably,” Karlekar said.

Catalysed by new channels such as ONDC, the e-commerce space is tipped to grow at an annual rate of 15-20%. While volumes from the metros are being driven by both new customers and increased frequency per user, in the Tier2 and Tier3 towns they are being fuelled largely by new shoppers.

How big the opportunity is can be gauged from the fact that the average number of packages per person per year is just four in India today compared with about 70 in China. Macquarie Research said shipments can go up 5-fold to 20 billion parcels with third party logistics (3PL) players gradually taking away share from in-house or captive logistics providers. As Jaffrey Thomas, Partner PwC, says, sectors like auto, pharma, organised retail, e-commerce or industrial goods are willing to pay the right price for such services since they need measurable and reliable service levels.

Delhivery’s infrastructure and network are also enabling it to cash in on the rising demand in the heavy parcels segment. Co-founder Sahil Barua believes the company’s ability to deliver odd form factors and heavy parcels are a key differentiator. “Typical light parcel networks are not able to handle heavy products because they require a fundamentally different infrastructure and mechanism,” Barua says. He adds that Delhivery’s ability to blend freight and parcel is what gives it the ability to gain share

THE BIG PICTURE

DELHIVERY IS BETTER-PLACED VIS-A-VIS THE COMPETITION BECAUSE ITS REVENUE MIX –BETWEEN B2B AND B2C–IS MORE DIVERSIFIED

RIDING HIGH

in heavy segment where the volumes are going up secularly. “Continuing to grow volumes in this segment is a key strategic focus area for us,” Barua says.

Delhivery is also better-placed vis a vis the competition because its revenue mix –between B2B and B2C–is more diversified. Moreover, it is relatively less dependent on the top three e-commerce players with small customers accounting for a healthy 25% of the express parcel business. Both Xpressbees and ECom Express, which are half the size of Delhivery have seen a meaningful deterioration in profitability in periods of strong growth, say Aditya Mongia and Deepak Krishnan at Kotak Institutional Equities.

Moreover, there’s scope to expand operating leverage. “We estimate that around one-third of Delhivery’s operating expenses will not necessarily scale in tandem with revenue growth,” Aditya Suresh of Macquarie believes.

The investments needed to gain share and grow in the PTL business, such as the integration of the network and the trailerisation strategy, are largely behind it. Seven quarters back the company drove 72 bn cubic ft km, of which 20% came from trailer trucks (TT) on its network. In the last quarter, it drove 128 bn cubic ft km, of which some 63% driven on its TTs. As such, the TT percentage has tripled on an expanded base.

“TTs are core to our growing PTL business, they allow us to haul a lot more load a lot more efficiently and we will continue to invest in building the TT network,” says Barua.

He points out it’s not merely a question of buying more trucks but how to integrate them with the mega gateways and making the gateways more productive.

The PTL story is one of a long period of consolidation in the market since organised players today have a share of less than 45% of express PTL volumes with the share of the top 3 at less than 20%. As such, more than the annual growth in demand of 8-9% what’s important is that everyone has room to grow. Macquarie’s Suresh estimates that one percentage point of market share can boost the compounded annual growth in revenue by 200-300 basis points. “We will invest in a larger sales force on the ground. We have expanded sales force to multiple cities across states and will do more in Q4,” Barua says.

Scaling up is a must. As experts point out, volumes are smaller than they were before the merger with Spoton. In this context, the company says a bigger sales force will help significantly expand the base of SME and smaller customers; historically, this has been an under-served segment and a big LTL opportunity. Delhivery is also using more of the bigger 40 ft trucks which can cut line haul costs by about 20%. In fact, these higher carrying capacity trucks used in its line-haul operations, was a major factor that drove up its ebitda margin in Q3 to 5% from a negative 4% in the year-ago quarter.

Analysts say a rising share of larger trucks has helped Delhivery’s line haul expenses become the ‘lowest in industry’. “We have the lowest cost network so we have the freedom and can price aggressively and uniformly,” Barua claims. PwC’s Thomas, however, points out that at some point 3PL players may get outpriced in the cargo segment where the need for value addition is limited and customers are cost conscious. For the moment though there aren’t any speed-breaker, the ride promises to be a smooth one.

How Alonso stopped goal machine Kane

SANDIP G
February 11

AFTER THE FINAL whistle blew, capping a symbolic night when Bayer Leverkusen thrashed Bayern Munich to stretch their lead to five on the Bundesliga chart, manager Xabi Alonso dragged his support staff to the middle of the pitch. The Spaniard and his entourage joined the tired but jubilant players in the middle and they walked towards each stand to thank the players. The moment was so eloquent that some of the shocked Bayern fans applauded Alonso’s gesture. Alonso, once Bayern’s own, is not only winning games but also winning the hearts of football fans.

The grace and calm always existed. Few midfielders in modern football could seamlessly straddle the varied roles of a midfield, he could snatch the ball from the opponent’s feet, with not so much of a swish as a touch; he could tigerishly hold onto the ball, without breaking a sweat or straining a muscle; he could tackle, pass, distribute (his biggest gift) and score (some long-range worldies he has netted), he could be the most visible and invisible player on the field. His manager at Bayern Munich, Pep Guardiola, once positively likened him to a chameleon, for his adaptability. His physicality stood out, sometimes it obscured his elegance too.

No wonder then that he frictionlessly fitted into the frameworks of different, often antithetical managers and teams. From a midfield don (it was his nickname too) in Real Sociedad, his home-club, he established an efficient alliance with Steven Gerrard at Rafa Benitez’s hard-working group that scripted the Miracle of Istanbul. He played tiki-taka with Spain to conquer the world; he would be the axis of Jose Mourinho’s quicksilver counterattackers, before he slotted into the heart of Guardiola’s shape-changing Bayern Munich. He has won everything one could have for his club and country, and in the journey worked with some of the finest managers of his time.

Some of the managers noticed the managerial spark quite early in his career. “He would see the game through the eyes of a manager. He had the vision and format, and talked tactics in finer details. He was the leader of leaders, though you would not always see that on the field,” Carlo Ancelotti, another celebrated manager who Alonso has played under, would observe. He used to pester Guardiola’s coaching staff, trying to gather as much knowledge as possible. “I just tried to be curious about the manager’s work,” Alonso would once say.

This revelatory season, where his Leverkusen has yet to lose a game and won 17 of their 21 fixtures, he has shown the finer virtues of all the legendary teams and managers that he has played with. Like prime Benitez, his recruiting was sharp. He lost his most valuable asset Moussa Diaby, but the 60 million Euros deal helped him leverage funds to purchase Granit Xhaka, Alex Grimaldo, Victor Bonifacio and Jonas Hofmann, the perfect budget players for his tactics. Xhaka and Hofmann, both 31, would bring experience to his rather young team. Like Mourinho, he first stabilized the defence, relying on counter-attacks. Like Guardiola he built his team block by block. From Ancelotti, he picked that supreme knack to manage, to understand the psychology of the players, to know when to be soft and stern, to understand both the physical and mental limits of a player.

There could be more twists and turns in the Bundesliga season; Bayern, champions for the past 11 seasons, don’t surrender without a fight. The five-point gap could be blown up in a couple of bad game-weeks. Leverkusen have a history of being self-destructive too—the moniker Neverkusen captures it. But with Alonso on the wheels, the promised land seems closer than ever before. And en route, Alonso is winning hearts and inviting covetous glances of Europe’s super clubs.

U-19 WC final: Australia dash Indian dreams with 79-run win

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
Benoni, South Africa,
February 11

A FRESH CHAPTER was added to the script of Australia’s domination over India in the ICC World Cup finals when they bagged the Under-19 title with a 79-run victory here on Sunday. Batting by choice, the Aussies posted a healthy 253 for seven as India were forced to mount the highest chase in a youth World Cup summit clash.

But Uday Saharan’s side floundered in the final step to glory, stumbling to 174 all out as the relentless Aussie bowlers led by the furious Mahli Beardman (3/15) and the crafty off-spinner Raf MacMillan (3/43) did not give them any breathing space.

This was Australia’s fourth U-19 title and first since 2010 and, in a way, they also washed away the pain of losing to India in two title matches in 2012 and 2018.

Many would view this result as a continuation of Australia’s win over India in the senior World Cup last year at Ahmedabad.

Pacer Callum Vidler started Australia’s victory march by packing off Indian opener Arshin Kulkarni, inducing an edge to stumper Ryan Hicks.

From that point, India simply failed to stitch together any meaningful partnerships as frontline batters including skipper Saharan (8), Musheer
